

foreword

I am not an historian with a long list of academic credentials after my name but I have been an active trade unionist long enough to know that anything and everything that workers have gained was won by organisation, campaigning and struggle. Unfortunately, the direction of travel is not all forwards. Given the kind of world we aspire to for working people and their families it is inevitable that any trade unionist will always be able to say “we live in interesting times”.

So today we are confronted by the challenges of globalisation, the opportunities of internationalism, threats from privatisation and neo-liberalism, attacks on the welfare state and, not least, the ongoing struggle for full trade union rights under ILO conventions, the abolition of the anti-trade union laws and the struggle for a Trade Union Freedom Bill. In truth, the challenges we face are immense and our goals lofty – but look at our assets.

More than two million trade union members live and work in London, the South East and the East of England. Each and every one of them has made a personal decision to join a collective to defend and extend their and others’ rights at work. We have huge resources, both in terms of expertise and sheer numbers. A voice at work, dignity at work, respect at work, equality at work and decent standards of employment; where they exist in whole, or even in part, it is not because an employer or government granted them out of generosity or a commitment to noble values. No, they are tangible material gains won through organisation and action.

Effective communication is a critical feature of effective campaigning. SERTUC has produced this second Regional Directory as a tool to increase contact between unions, and to facilitate contact between unions, trades councils, TUC unemployed workers’ centres and other regional partners. The SERTUC regional office has always been willing to offer advice as to whom a union should seek to contact to further joint working. This Directory is not intended to substitute or usurp that role. Not always, but often, SERTUC staff will have additional knowledge about ongoing campaigns, about unions’ priorities, about which officer has a particular expertise or interest or which trades council has had a related campaign.

This directory should increase enquiries to the SERTUC office not reduce them.

The SERTUC regional council is a campaigning body. I, the Executive Committee and the Regional Secretary are determined to do what we can to increase the capacity of unions in this region to campaign effectively and successfully and I trust that this Directory will be a valuable tool. By working together we can better shape the world in which we live and work, moving forward to rights at work for all, social justice, international solidarity and peace.

More than ever, trade unionism is the hope of the world.

Martin Gould
SERTUC President

sertuc office team

The Southern and Eastern Regional Council of the Trades Union Congress represents TUC affiliated trade unions in London, the South East and the East of England. SERTUC directly represents the interest of those unions' two million plus members, who live and work in this region, and works on behalf of all working people and their families.

Unions and county associations of trades councils nominate delegates to the Regional Council, which meets quarterly to discuss both how to achieve policy determined at the national Trade Union Congress, and to make specific policies on regional issues.

The SERTUC AGM elects an Executive Committee that meets monthly, and officers – a President, two Vice-Presidents, and a Treasurer.

The EC also establishes working groups as appropriate (currently there is an Olympic & Paralympic Games working group which is working closely with the TUC to develop and win policies on a wide range of issues including employment, procurement, and volunteers).

SERTUC has a number of policy sub-groups, to which unions and county associations of trades councils send delegates, that advise the Regional Council. These are both equality and industrial groups.

The SERTUC office administers the Regional Council, delivers services to the affiliates, represents the TUC in relations with public bodies, and campaigns for Congress policy. There are five members of staff: John Ball Policy Officer; Megan Dobney Regional Secretary; Laurie Heselden Campaigns and Policy Officer; Matt Dykes Policy Officer; and Darren Lewis Administrative Secretary. Email addresses are first name initial followed by surname@tuc.org.uk.

This is the second SERTUC regional directory – many thanks to those unions that responded for their help in establishing contact points for our, and your, work.

The nature of our movement means that almost as soon as the information is committed to paper it is out of date. Therefore we shall be posting a pdf version on our website (www.tuc.org.uk/sertuc) which we will keep updated.

I hope the information is helpful to affiliates and partner organisations and I particularly want to thank Thompsons Solicitors for their support for the project.

Megan Dobney

sertuc unionlearn

Unionlearn, established in May 2006 under the auspices of the TUC, integrated SERTUC Learning Services and TUC Education boosting support for union reps and learners in general.

The Southern and Eastern Regional Council helps shape the region's learning and skills policy and the unionlearn Regional Manager works with the Regional Secretary to actively engage unions in this work.

Regional Manager

Barry Francis develops and promotes a wide range of activities with the support of unionlearn's national managers. He is based in Congress House.

trades councils

The purpose of a trades union council recognised by the TUC is to bring together union branches at a local level to campaign around issues affecting working people in their workplaces and local communities.

Trades councils in black are registered with the TUC for 2010. Those greyed out have not yet re-registered.

unemployed workers centres

TUC Unemployed Workers' Centres are community-based organisations that exist to provide unemployed people with information and advice as well as providing a focal point in the community where unemployed people can make contact with each other, with people in work, and become involved in a range of activities.

They encourage the unemployed to participate fully in the work of the Centre via a committee of centre users and assist the unemployed to maintain or establish links with trade unions.

They undertake research and disseminate this and other information within the community as well as supporting relevant community and trade union campaigns.

Only three centres responded to our request for information and they are included here.
